This book is actually a checklist of periodicals that published fiction of super-imaginative types. Included are science-fiction, fantasy, fantastic adventure, and weird tales. Information on some of the mystery-weird magazines is not complete. To offset this deficiency, magazines are listed from around the world. It seems, though, that only peoples of European stock or extraction have produced periodicals of this type. A few issues were published in Japan, but were mostly translations from U. S. magazines. The U. S. S. R. recently began publication of science-fiction magazines, but information was not available for inclusion here.

A very large number of fantasy periodicals is not listed: the sadly mis-named Comic Books. You could not ask for more fantastic material than SUPERMAN, TALES FROM THE CRYPT, TALES OF HORROR, WEIRD SCIENCE, EERIE, WEIRD WORLDS, THE VAULT OF HORROR, and so on through dozens of titles and thousands of issues. Nearly in the same category are the so-called "Monster" magazines, such as FAMOUS MONSTERS OF FILM-LAND, WORLD FAMOUS CREATURES, MONSTERS AND THINGS, and so forth. The checklist, though, must concern itself with magazines presenting stories in lines of printed words and only incidental illustrations.

Nearly all magazines that publish fiction seem to have presented at least a few fantasy stories. The chic MADEMOISELLE and the staid SATURDAY EVENING POST published a couple fantasies. LIBERTY and COLLIER'S produced a fair amount. Other old-timers with a fair number were, COMPLETE STORIES, ROMANCE MAGAZINE, CENTURY, COSMOPOLITAN, TOP NOTCH, THRILLING ADVENTURES, EVERYBODY'S MAGAZINE, ADVENTURE, and on. In a special class, the magazine, MODERN ELECTRICS ran stories of true science-fiction from 1911 to 1913 when the title was changed to ELECTRICAL EXPERIMENTER. This policy was begun and continued by Hugo Gernsback, and culminated in the first all science-fiction magazine, AMAZING STORIES, in April 1926.

Other magazines published a good number of science-fiction and fantasy stories: POPULAR MAGAZINE, THE IDLER, and especially, THE BLUE BOOK MAGAZINE. Best of all, though, were the Munsey periodicals. Editorial policy seemed to be to feature fantasy stories of all kinds. From 1896 to 1943 this policy was continued. The lesser Munsey titles were ALL-AMERICAN FICTION, LIVE WIRE, OCEAN, SCRAP BOOK, MUNSEY'S MAGAZINE, and THE CAVALIER. Of greatest interest are ALL-STORY and ARGOSY. ALL-STORY began as a monthly in January 1905, changed to weekly publication on March 7, 1914, and was merged with ARGOSY on July 24, 1920. THE GOLDEN ARGOSY began as a weekly on December 9, 1882. The title was changed to THE ARGOSY on December 1, 1883. It became a monthly from April 1894 to September 1917, changed to weekly October 6, 1917, bi-monthly November 1, 1941, and monthly with July 1942. This pair had hundreds of good science-fiction and fantasy stories.

Unhappily for collectors all of the above magazines had, at best, only partial fantasy content. Regretfully, their listing will have to be left for another time.

The key to the information on these pages is simple. Magazine titles are in alphabetical order. National origin is noted, except for periodicals from this country.

To find the date of any issue, read the year on the left side of the page and the month from the top. As an example, the first issue of AMAZING STORIES was published in April, 1926. This is Volume 1, Number 1. Each magazine that used this system has an entry in the appropriate square, with the volume printed above the number. Some publishers used only the number. A few magazines were not numbered; such issues have the entry UN. Quarterly issues are designated by initials in a following square—W, S, S, F. Winter, Spring, Summer, Fall. The latter sometimes had A, for Autumn. Titles with the notation (undated) have their entries most always on the month of appearance.

Changes of title are noted on the right side of the page, together with publisher errors on volume or number. Also, a note on the type of fiction in each title.
